

ADDISON AND THE MISSING ALICORNS

A long, long time ago, at the top of mount Genyen an angel named Addison was searching for her alicorn Millie, whom she loved dearly, for every single alicorn had been stolen! Addison was an eighteen year old angel warrior who wished that she could actually be a warrior and fight, but never could because apparently she was 'too young and should guard the innocent people instead.' Its not that she didn't want to be on the A.W.F (angel warrior force), oh no, she just wanted something a little more exiting. After all she was very brave, looked amazing and she won every fight against 88 people from 10 years old! She didn't know who stole the alicorns but she was 99.9999% sure it was the demon elves. Whoever it was she was going to get those alicorns back before they realized what was happening.

Meanwhile, a shadow flitted across the rocky surface of a dimly lit cave, nobody could slay this creature that the demon elf had planted to protect his stash of alicorns. Only the bravest of heroes could even think about getting past, and the demon elf was sure that nobody would dare after seeing the beast that guarded the gate...

Along the pathway Addison saw a hut with a sign that said 'do not go any further without visiting this shop or you will certainly die' Addison went up to this strange hut and demanded to know what was ahead "now, now little girl," he grinned as he put out his hand "I simply couldn't tell you without money" "Ill pay you if you tell me your name and what you sell" "Fine I'm jack, I am a wizard and I sell magical objects like this on sale sword that puts anything or one to sleep and these boots that point you to the place you need to go by just telling them where to go, buy one get one free! Addison knew that those boots were all she needed to find the alicorns but she didn't trust him so she made a deal that as long as he came with her she would pay him 5 pounds so they had a deal.

They started the journey to the alicorns and if the wind had been any worse in that tornado than an hour into the journey, they would've slid off the edge! Unluckily, before they could make it to the alicorns, a huge gust of wind blew them off the cliff and Addison couldn't fly yet, she could only heal, and even if she could, she wouldn't be safe. She thought rapidly and was unsure of her plan but it was worth a try so she told the boots to carry on going to the alicorns and they did! "Wow, these boots are incredible" she exclaimed as she grabbed the wizard "yeah I know" he said smugly. Eventually, they made it out of the tornado and carried on, on the journey to the alicorns

After hours on end of walking, they made it to the cave. She quietly took off the shoes and put on her own shoes. All that could be heard was the growling/whining sound coming from inside. The sounds almost burst their eardrums! Fortunately, the wizard had some earmuffs, which they put on. She peeked inside. There the alicorns were, including Millie! There was something else as well, it was big all right. The beast that was so huge and so terrible that no one even tried to get near him knowing they would die...

ADDISON AND THE MISSING ALICORNS

'It had two giant round snouted dragonheads, four glorious feathered phoenix wings, no legs and a half blues half reds slithering scaly snake body! It was massive, gargantuan, unbeatable, terrible-' "hey are you going to put him to sleep or..." the wizard wondered. But then Addison asked what they were going to do when it was sleeping but the wizard didn't know. Once every five minutes, they thought of an excellent plan then realized it wouldn't work. After an hour of that, the wizard gave up and asked for his money so he could leave "you are not going anywhere until I get Millie back! I thought you would've known that by now." Five minutes later Addison got it. "Hey wizard, can you shrink things?" "Yes, why" asked the curious wizard. "What if we shrink the beast down to a smaller size so we can ride it?" "That, that's a great idea" so Addison walked into the cave, hoping that it would work...

Addison was face-to-face with the glorious hybrid beast, as she got closer to put it to sleep she noticed that it was crying. She managed to put it to sleep and the wizard used a spell to shrink it to a rideable size for angels. Addison took the wizard's wand and cast a splitting spell and then using her healing ability she healed the now separate hybrids and started to wake them up.

When they woke up they were extremely happy for they had finally been separated. In thanks the fire hybrid burned the lock that held the alicorns in the cage and the water dragon put it out. The fire hybrid rather liked the wizard and decided to stay with him and guide him home and the water hybrid took Addison and the alicorns home and stayed with the queen of the angels. Every weekend the water and fire hybrids meet up again in a nice calm place and take care of Earth.
